

Texas Rivers Project

BACK TO SCHOOL AND BACK TO MONITORING

It is really hard to believe, but the Texas Rivers Project is beginning its 11th year of volunteer environmental monitoring. Chillicothe High School, Holliday High School, and Vernon Junior High School have been faithful participants of the program all of these years. Bellevue Independent School District will be joining our elite group this year. As you are getting settled into the new year, it is time to schedule your monitoring events and preparing new students for this exciting, worthwhile adventure. Without a doubt, education about water quality, knowledge of the water cycle, and similar curriculum taught to children beginning at an early age are key elements in solving the water needs of the future.

A few pictures of the Texas Rivers Project students during their monitoring events were included in the Basin Highlights Reports published in May 2002. We want to get started early this year and have a variety of new pictures and information for the next Basin Highlights Reports.

Also, check out our web site to view pictures of several students who have been participants in the Texas Rivers Project since its inception. If you have information to add about your school, send it to us and we will proudly display it on our web site at www.rra.dst.tx.us/crp.

We hope that you have a great school year and look forward to working with you again on environmental monitoring through the Texas Rivers Project. Please feel free to contact us anytime. We want this to be a terrific learning experience for you – water is our most precious resource. Remember, you are the future and we are depending on you.

Remember:
The water you are using today is only
on loan from your grandchildren.
